

2017 December McGlenn News letter.

Homeschool – I’m down to two schools one in Santa Maria with four children, and one in Atascadero with nine young people. That one is the farthest away at 50 miles, but with that many kids, it is cost effective. We are doing biology part two. Which is looking at the microscopic world of cells, the blood cascade that makes a scab or blood clot and genetics, which includes hair color, skin color and mutations that are harmful to us. All of it is designed to show God’s handiwork with life protecting systems in our body that work to keep us healthy every day. Photo shows a cell kids made out of PVC pipe.

Museum – The remodeling is pretty much done, we have matching curtains that keep the dust off all the exhibits, as well as glass cabinets in the bone room that look very nice and professional. Amy, who is a businesswoman, has been very helpful and we have been dating.

We are trying to have a an open house at the museum once a month.

In October we had an open house with about 25 people who came, the theme was based upon a skull that I got from Joe Taylor in Texas when I visited him. You might call it a “conehead” skull. We addressed the issue as to whether it was an alien from outer space, a human with a mutation or from a group of people who practiced head wrapping to make the head elongated which was my final interpretation. (Photo: Top: the new remodel. Next: visitors to museum. Amy back left. John my friend who helps teach at the museum back far rt).

For December 9, we are having another open house 10AM to 3PM and the theme for it is the Bethlehem Star. What was it? A star, a comet or an angel going before the Wisemen? Also, where did the Wisemen come from and who were they? How did they know about Jesus being born in Israel?

Support – Two people have pledged $25 a month, so I’m down to a need of $500 a month to get back to my original support base. I appreciate your prayers for my ministry and that we can still carry on the mission. If you’d like to make a year end and one time donation to our mission, the address is at the end of the letter.

Tent making – To supplement my income, I have been making stone carvings as well as jewelry to sell at Santa Barbara. The stone carvings are very heavy and so I’ve gone into making jewelry that is lightweight for people who come from out of state by plane. Amy has been advising me on what looks good, what might sell, and how to advertise. She is a great blessing to me and I thank God for bringing her into my life.

China Mission – I am still praying about going to China in April or May if God opens the doors. I still need to raise $650 of the $1000 that I need. Please pray that if God wants me to go that the money will come in. Thank you all for your prayers and your financial help. I pray you have a good Christmas and new year. In Him, Russ
